Soup Sunday: So nice, we host it twice!

Ask anyone. Soup Sunday is one of THE MOST FUN events in Arkansas. The atmosphere is “souper” casual and family-friendly, the food is always delicious, and the cause most important – the future of Arkansas’s kids. We even won the Arkansas Times Best Charity Event, two years in a row!

Northwest Arkansas Soup Sunday is February 18 at the Rogers Convention Center from 4:30 – 6:30 p.m. Co-chairs Jess and Clint Schaff and their committee are creating an event that will include unBOWLievable soups, a rockin’ Kid Zone, and the nicest people in Northwest Arkansas. New this year: a DESSERT auction with delicacies from local bakeries. Soup’s On!
Central Arkansas Soup Sunday is happening on March 10 at The Venue at Westwind in North Little Rock from 4:00 – 7:00 p.m. Co-chairs (and AACF board members)

Shannon Collier-Tenison and Danyelle Walker are leading an engaged volunteer committee making SOUPER plans for this year’s event. Our featured chef will be James Hale of Allsopp & Chapple.

Sponsorships and tickets: aradvocates.org/events
Proceeds from both events support AACF’s mission to ensure that all Arkansas children and their families have the resources and opportunities to lead healthy and productive lives.

Want to support Soup Sunday using your Donor Advised Fund? We can help! Call and we’ll provide a quick summary of the tax deductible portion of your sponsorship and the fair market value of your tickets, no matter what level of sponsorship you’re considering.

Child advocacy needs all of us

How are we doing, Arkansas?

Can we say that all our families are well fed? That all our children are well-educated and living in safe, stable housing? That we drive down nicely paved roads, and everyone can get the health care they need when they need it?

Arkansas is not there.

During the 2023 General Assembly, many bills were not considered because of concerns about costs. There were proposals that could have helped improve access to and the quality of our early child-care system, which is critical to getting workers to work. There were bills that could have helped address the rising costs of diapers and formula. Or made wheelchair-accessible vehicles more attainable for people with mobility issues. We could have expanded Medicaid coverage for new moms to address our state’s alarming mortality rate.

Other investments that we know Arkansas needs:

- Expanding broadband access
- Eliminating food deserts and related hunger issues
- Providing substance abuse services
- Expanding community-based programs for youth
- Meeting the increasing need for mental health services
- Providing health insurance for uninsured children

“The state budget is a reflection of our values. If we want our communities to thrive, we need to take a more active role in making the economy stronger for every Arkansan,” commented Keesa Smith, AACF’s Executive Director. “We should take a hard look at our state and its needs and determine if we can truly say that we are meeting them.”

Join us. Donate. Vote. Advocate.

Your year-end gift helps AACF advocate for spending our state’s money where it is most needed – helping Arkansas children and families have the resources and opportunities to lead healthy and productive lives and to realize their full potential.

Make the choice today to be an advocate.

Laura Kellams
Northwest Arkansas Director

Laura Kellams joined AACF as its first Northwest Arkansas director in 2008. In this role, she works to call attention to challenges facing children in the region and to build support for policy solutions that can help all children thrive. Before joining Advocates, she was a newspaper reporter for 15 years, mostly covering politics and government for the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette. During that time, she served as a journalism fellow on the staff of the U.S. Senate Finance Committee as part of the American Political Science Association's Congressional Fellowship Program.

She is a longtime board member of the Economic Opportunity Agency of Washington County as well as the League of Women Voters. She is a past recipient of the Georgetown Center for Children and Families' national "Bulldog of the Year" award for her advocacy to extend health coverage to immigrant children in Arkansas. Laura and her husband Kyle have lived in Fayetteville for more than 30 years.

15 Years in Northwest AR!

Nearly 200 friends gathered to celebrate 15 years of our Northwest Arkansas office and to recognize the leadership of Northwest Arkansas Director Laura Kellams. We presented Laura with an original work by local artist Aaron Bleidt. Guests heard from former board chair Lynn Carver, AACF Executive Director Keesa Smith, Incoming Board President Xochitl Delgado Solorzano, and Peggy Bailey with our national partner Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

At the event, Development Director Missy Darwin Kincaid announced that Jane Hunt has made a three-year commitment totaling $300,000 to AACF, which is the largest single gift from an individual to the organization. Missy also shared that we have exceeded the $100,000 matching gift from Denton and Cathy Seilhan. And Missy recognized Jill and Tom King for their estate gift and encouraged others to join them in this legacy.

2023 Friends of Children

Celebrating child advocates

Our 2023 Friends of Children Annual Luncheon was a huge success! Special thanks to our Presenting Sponsor Entergy Arkansas.

We are always encouraged by the show of support for our work. We are grateful to Jay Barth and Christie Erwin for their work on behalf of our state's children. Jay Barth was instrumental in starting community schools in Little Rock. Christie Erwin's passion is for connecting foster children to their forever families.

We are especially thankful to the family of the late State Senator Bill Lewellen. We were proud to celebrate his legacy child- and equity-centered work.
